

HIS WAY FOR LIVE SPORTING HAPPENINGS

EDITED BY WAGNER

BOY HARTZELL AND BOB VEACH MAKE $1,600 FLY STABS

New York, Sept. 16.—Fred Snodgrass once made a $25,000 miff in Boston. Yesterday at the Polo Grounds Bobbie Veach and Roy Hartzell each made $1,600. The catches did not yield Veach or Hartzell that sum, but they took a $1,600 overland car from Roger Peckinpaugh and the Detroit George Burns.

In the seventh inning Peck drove a fierce drive to deep left, and it was headed for the automobile sign when Veach pulled it down. The first athlete who hits the overland sign in left field is to get a car.

Opening the ninth Burns of the Tigers sent a savage whack spinning directly toward the sign. Hartzell, making a fine fly catch, started it about fifteen feet in front of the sign and about six feet above the ground.

Peck's drive was much lower, and if it had hit it would have been just above the ground, but Burns' whack would have hit it plump in the center of the ad. George gave Hartzell about nine angry glances. As the Yankees had a chance they were pretty tough, that $1,600 catch!

YANKEE DEFEAT HELPS TIGERS TO GAIN ON RED SOX

New York, Sept. 16.—The old Indian name the Detroit Tigers have on the Yankees was in good working order again yesterday at the Polo Grounds. The Tigers chalked up a clean sweep of the present series by a score of 4 to 2 for yesterday's game, making their record for the season against Donovan's men 17 games won as against 5 lost. Furthermore, it was the eighth straight defeat for the New York Yankees. The profitable series here has boosted the stock of the Tigers in the pennant race. They are now on the heels of the Red Sox.

It was in the third inning that the Indian sign had the Indians Caldwell issued two passes, and these, followed by three hits, accounted for three runs and the game.

The Yankees got a run in the fifth and their other tally in the seventh. In the latter inning it looked as if they had a chance to win the game, for they filled the bases with none out. But Coveleskie, who relieved Boland when things looked dangerous, whisked up and the Donovanites were able to chase only on error across the plate.

BETTING ON BASEBALL IN BOSTON NOT NEW

The amazing discovery has been made that open betting is indulged in at the Boston ball parks. The same discovery could have been made at any time during the past 20 years, writes Bob Dunbar in the Boston Journal. Who can remember at what game no knot of betting fans huddled together, with remarkable symptoms of friendliness, behind first base or third?

While betting is of course to be deplored, the amount of it done at the ball parks has never injured the reputation of the game of baseball as an honest sport. The magnates do well to discourage the gambling element from ever wanting anything resembling a struggle hold on game or players, but the danger of this particular injury would be much more likely to arise from the so-called baseball pool than from the more highly organized and much more casual wagering of the Dos and Dents.

SHERWOOD MAGEE DID NOT LIKE TO APPEAR AGAINST ST. LOUIS TEAM

When Sherwood Magee was with the Phillies he hated to have to play against the Cardinals.

"It's this way," explained Magee one day. "When the Giants come along they begin to taunt us as soon as they come on the field. Naturally this arouses the Cardinals, and we sail into them and frequently with success. On the other hand, when the Cardinals arrive they are always full of good humor. They start to kid right away and get going. The result is that we don't go after the Cardinals in the proper manner, and they often get the better of a series with us."

UMPIRE BYRON AND RED SMITH IN FIGHT AFTER GAME IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Sept. 16.—At the conclusion of yesterday's game Umpire Byron and Red Smith of Boston had a hot fight. The umpire landed twice on the third baseman before Umpire Orth and the Boston players could separate the belligerents. Smith kicked freely on Byron's calling of balls and strikes during the game and went to Byron later to renew the complaint. Neither party to the fight was hurt.

Umpire Byron refused to comment on the battle, merely stating that he would make his report to the president of the league. However, several of those who were close to the participants said that Smith was "flying" Byron because of his decision on balls and strikes.

News of President Toner's decision on the umpire's report is eagerly awaited about baseball headquarters here. The Braves have a fighting chance for the National League pennant, and already have three of their regulars out of the lineup. These are Schmidt, Maranville and Snodgrass.

One town was destroyed and many others badly damaged by the earthquake of Sept. 6 in Salvador.

SPECIAL SALE OF FURNIS
JOHN RECK & SON

Wagner's Watch Tower

In Boston today there is more excitement than you can shake a stick at. The Red Sox and Detroit Tigers start their series which will decide the American League pennant. With Tigers only two games behind the Red Sox, Carrigan's men have good cause for feeling anxious. On the eve of his departure for Boston last night Manager Jennings of Detroit said: "I am satisfied that if we capture the series in Boston we will win the pennant." Jennings has been grooming Daus, Dubuc and Coveleskie for the Red Sox. But the Tiger boxmen will have to show considerable improvement if they expect to hold the Boston sluggers.

In the National League the Phillies suffered a reverse in Pittsburgh but lost no ground as the Braves were also beaten. Brooklyn was the only team that profited. The Dodgers remained idle but slipped back into second place when the Cubs clawed the Braves.

Let's hear no more of this persiflage about funny names in baseball. Incho and Scherick are trying for the Cornell football eleven.

Manager Jennings of Detroit is much impressed with Pitcher Moegridge, the new southpaw secured by the New York Americans from Des Moines, Ia. The Yankees need a southpaw. They need a lot of other things, too.

The annual draft of the big leagues was held yesterday in Cincinnati. The names of the players picked from the minors for advancement were kept secret. It is feared that if the Federals know the names they would try to steal the players. After the magnates have signed up the drafted men they will publish the names.

Jess Willard, who has been going around the country kidding the public with his tame exhibition in the 101 Ranch show, has come a cropper in Wisconsin. The state law forbids boxing except in regular bouts licensed by the commission. The circus management will probably charge the public a quarter a throw to see Jess ride around the ring on a horse.

Coach Haughton of Harvard has decided to use Soucy, one of his veterans, at end this season. Soucy was hurt last year. Harvard must have plenty of center material when it can afford to make an end out of Soucy.

It's awful weather to mention such a thing but nevertheless the first game at New Haven will be played one week from Saturday when the University of Maine meets Yale.

Tim Hendryx, the leading batter of the Southern League, will report to the New York Americans Sunday. He is an outfielder. The Yankees certainly can use some hitters. Lute Boone will lose his job at second base because of weak sticking.

If John McGraw decided to jump to the Federals he might get a chance to manage Benny Kauff. That would provide enough entertainment. McGraw must feel like jumping some day to escape watching the Giants play every day.

The Last of the Old Cubs

Frank M. Schulte, the last survivor among the Cubs of the old scrappy line-up which "Peerless" Leader Chance so often led to victory, will be thirty-five years old next July. Schulte celebrates his birthday just two days before his old leader, as Chance was born in Fresno, Cal., on Sept. 19, 1879. Schulte made his major league debut at Chicago, N. Y., and played independent ball with Pennsylvania and New York clubs before he started his league career with Syracuse in 1902, the same year that Johnny Evers butted into the game with Troy. In the same league, "Scrappy John" beat Frank to the Cubs, for he went to Chicago in 1902, and it was not until 1904 that Schulte joined the Cubs. Although Frank and Schulte were old next July, they were now scattered far and wide, with Tinker, Brown and Reulbach with the Reds, Moran piloting the Phillies, Evers with the Braves and others in the minors or out of the game. Frank has stuck in the Cub outfield. First to last, he has been a credit to the game, and although he has never ranked as a diamond star of the first magnitude, he has been steady and dependable.

MOSES ROGERS

The captain of the first steam vessel to cross the Atlantic was Moses Rogers, who died at Cheraw, South Carolina, ninety-three years ago today, Sept. 15, 1822. Rogers was a native of New London, Conn., and was in his fourth year when he was placed in command of the steamship Savannah, a vessel of 380 tons. The daddy of trans-atlantic liners was built in New York City by Francis Picket, and Stephen Vail of Morristown, N. J., built her engineer. She was owned by Daniel Dodd. She was launched in 1818, and the following May, with Captain Rogers in command, sailed from New York for Savannah. On May 24th, with Stephen Rogers as skipper, the Savannah sailed from the city for which she was named, bound for Liverpool. The voyage occupied 26 days, upon 18 of which she was propelled by steam. The steamship was thought to be on fire when she reached the Irish coast, and a crew was sent out to help fight the flames. From Liverpool the Savannah proceeded to St. Petersburg, returning thence to Savannah.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, German Imperial Chancellor, went to Munich, Bavaria, to confer with King Ludwig and the Bavarian Prime Minister.

Plants of the Cambria Steel Co. are reported to be working at capacity. A year ago they were operating at less than 50 per cent. capacity.

PENN CREW COACH SAYS WORK MEANS BIG MENTAL STRAIN

"I have often been told that coaching a crew is a cinch," says Vivian Nickalls, former coach of the Pennsylvania oarsmen. "Easy berth, old man; sit in a chair in a launch, holler through a megaphone at eight perspiring individuals for an hour or two and there you are, you know." That is the idea that the average man has about the crew coach.

"Now if they knew what a coach has to do outside of that launch for the whole season, the idea that it is not such a cinch as it looks. A crew coach of any university is really never off his job, and has more months of actual coaching than any other coach in that institution. The outside work is to see that everything is being fitted up ready for use when the start is made again, and there are many details that do not get done, if you don't see them done or do them yourself.

"After you have cut your candidates down to about six crews, out of which you have to select the best, you are to get those candidates seated in the right order in the right boat, and later when you have them picked out, you will be all the time worried. One man is coming on fast enough, another is getting overworked, they have a slump, and you have to reset them and your spirits go to zero, and the next week you regain confidence in them, only to be let down again.

"Many a sleepless night have I spent arranging and rearranging my crews, and my crew of last year was made up of 20 oarsmen, and I suddenly flashing into my head that Marcy was the man to stroke, and it turned out to be so.

"Then you have to find out the temperament of your men. You can't coach all alike. Some you can drive and they row better if you drive. Others go up in the air. One man you cannot talk to in a boat, but you have to tell him afterwards, for he will sulk. The great thing is to get eight men of equable temperament if you can. A disturber or a grouchy on a crew is unbearable and hurts a crew more than anything else.

"If I find a man is a disturber I take especial notice and relegate him to the next crew, even if the man who takes his place is not quite so good. You have got to know your men, to be a coach, and study them off the river as well as on, and they in their turn must place perfect confidence in you. They will succeed in giving them confidence if you mix with them, talk freely with them, and if they know you have been through the gaff yourself. Personality is 50 per cent. knowledge 25 per cent., and ability to impart your knowledge 25 per cent."

PITCHER MAMAUX LOST TO PIRATES FOR THIS SEASON

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 16.—The overbouts of food of chicken and waffles may keep Al Mamaux, the National League pitcher star, out of the game for the rest of the season. The Dormont boy's ailment has been diagnosed by some physicians as appendicitis, and though his case yields to temporary treatment, it is said that he must undergo an operation sooner or later.

Mamaux is at his home in Dormont looking down across the valley in Oakland. He was yearning yesterday for another crack at the Phils, but was unable to leave his room. He is in the care of physicians, and under treatment. He is going to be out, he will go under the knife soon, or at least immediately after the close of the season.

The young pitcher was seized with attack on Friday, this following one of his losses in a game at Cleveland. He was in a hospital for some time last July. He lost eight pounds in weight and his condition became so acute that he was confined to his home. He hoped to avoid an immediate operation in the hope of rejoining the team and doing some work, but last night it was reported he could not possibly do a uniform inside of a week and then it is doubtful if he will be in condition to pitch. Clara needs more than a month at any time this season because of the first division's accessibility and his eagerness to finish higher. Mamaux has won 20 games and lost 7, and he looks like a pitcher capable enough to lead the National League pitchers and win many more games. But it looks as though Mamaux would be on the shelf until next year.

Mack Cancels Games When Attendance Drops; Then Goes Barnstorming.

Philadelphia, Sept. 16.—What a downfall for the former mighty World's Champions! The Athletics, who still are champions of the American league, have had such small crowds that the management has been compelled to resort to hush league tactics to collect a few stray fans.

There was no American league game here yesterday nor today. Today's scheduled game with St. Louis was played in a forenoon double-header last Saturday, while another double-header will be played next Saturday when today's scheduled game with Cleveland will be played.

In the meantime the Athletics are on a short barnstorming trip, picking up jitneys from the yokels in Delaware and Maryland. These are the Athletics who in their 15-year career in Philadelphia have won six league pennants, three World's Championships, and until this year have only finished twice in the second division.

Philadelphia is making Mack pay dearly for the sale of Collins Barry, Murphy and Shawkey, the release of Plank, Bender and Coombs and the enforced vacation of Baker.

OLDFIELD EXPECTS 2 MILES A MINUTE ON NEW SPEEDWAY

New York, Sept. 16.—"Stupendous! It has speed possibilities that no motor car in existence today can begin to realize," was the words used by Barney Oldfield yesterday in describing his impression of the Sheephead Bay Speedway after his first visit to the course.

Of all the famous racing pilots who have seen the track none has been more amazed at the magnitude of the racing plant, or more confident of the world's records in store for it than Barney Oldfield, a few weeks ago at Chicago, put up an average of 111.5 miles per hour in his big Christie racer.

"I was simply amazed," said he, "at the wonderful layout. Just as such as shooting the mile from the start Cup on Oct. 2, will average over 100 miles an hour. I do not believe, though, that in the elimination trials next week the 300 cubic inch cars will show the race will show much faster than the 110.1 miles per hour put up by Resta at Chicago.

The truth is that cars of that limited displacement have gone already pretty close to their sprinting limit. In a long run, however, they will make a much better average showing on the new course, for the Sheephead Bay Speedway is miles faster than the track in the country, and near the seashore the carburetion will be much faster than inland.

"Do I believe that a big powered car can show down there as average for a lap of 120 miles an hour? I surely do. I'll guarantee to drive my big speed car two miles a minutes at Sheephead or take no money for the trial."

YATES, WHO QUIT YALE, REPORTS TO PRINCETON SQUAD

Princeton, Sept. 16.—Without any forewarning Ducky Yates, the star tackle of the Yale freshman eleven last fall, landed in Tigertown yesterday afternoon to pursue his studies at Princeton. His arrival came as a surprise to all, as he had been heralded as going to about every other college in the east, but Princeton. Yates will not be eligible to play on the Princeton eleven this fall, but the Tigers will be able to use him for three years, as he is entering as a freshman. Yale was considered the biggest find of the season last fall when Yates went to New Haven, and the big tackle measured up to all that was expected of him.

Johnny Griffiths, 22 Tomorrow, Looks Like a Lightweight Comer

Among the many contenders for the lightweight crown now worn by Freddie Welsh, not the least prominent is Johnny Griffiths, of Akron, Ohio. Johnny, who certainly looks like a comer, is still a youngster, for he is only 22 years old, but he has been boxing as a professional for nearly five years. Most of his early bouts were staged in Akron, and majority of them were won by knockouts. After a time Griffiths began to visit Canton, Cleveland, Youngstown, Columbus and other Ohio towns for bouts with a better class of boys. It was not until a couple of years ago that Johnny began to mingle with the great ones. He has since then been knocked out by Hughie Mehegan, the Australian lightweight champion, and defeated several other boys, but the outbreak of the war cut short his Australian activities. Since returning to America Griffiths has fought several top-notchers. Last February he outpointed Champion Freddie Welsh in a 12-round contest, and a little later he had a decisive shade over Joe Shugrue, the Jersey City slugger, in a bout in his home town. Last month he won on a foul from Milburn Saylor, the Hoosier lightweight, and then made his first trip to New York and outpointed Leach Cross, the hard-hitting dentist. All of the New York sporting writers agreed that the Ohio Welshman had the best of his early combats with the New York Hebrew. Griffiths also received referee's decisions over Joe Azevedo and Joe Mandot. He has occasionally had the worst of it, but he has never been decisively defeated.

Griffiths' showing against Cross made him a favorite with the New York fans, for the molar extractor is a hard nut to crack. Griffiths still has his best years before him, and with a little more experience and by taking good care of himself he ought to make a great name for himself in the squared circle.

Mrs. Adelyn McDonnell of Chicago was clawed and choked by performing in the American theatre, Chicago.

LE GORE SENT TO SECOND TEAM BY COACHES AT YALE

Madison, Sept. 16.—Several experiments in the shifting of players are being worked out by the Yale football coaches. Mosely, who has been left out daily since practice commenced, was succeeded by Church, who played the position till injured early last fall. The regular guards last year, Conroy and Walden, were replaced by Pie Way, regular two seasons ago, and Kostitzky of the third eleven last fall.

For the second day the veteran Harry LeGore, was used on the second team, Ole Guernsey being given fullback. Guernsey held the berth two years ago. Captain Aleck Wilson and Effie Waite were again the halfbacks, and Bentley drove the eleven from quarterback.

GOOD BOXING IN WATERBURY, SEPT. 30.

Dan Buckley, the matchmaker of the North End Athletic Club of Waterbury, has arranged his card for the 30th of September.

The star bout will bring together Jimmy Taylor, the New York bantamweight, who recently fought Champion Kid Williams fifteen hard rounds and Young O'Leary a boy who has fought the best of them including three champions, namely Kid Williams, Johnny Coulon and Johnny Kilbane.

The ten round semi-windup will find as principals those two sterling middleweights, Silent Martin and Frankie Notter. Martin made a big hit in Wales's show in New Britain a few weeks ago by stopping Red Ames of Hartford in seven rounds.

Tommy Houck, the rugged Philadelphia lightweight, and Jimmy Fasane the Wallingford Wop of Waterbury will clash in the other ten.

Houck is well known by virtue of his victories over Enea and Young Dyan
